IC10 - Getting to the core of Vision- A Neuro Ophthalmic deep dive into the Pupils

Date : 14-11-2025

Time : 10:00-11:00

Hall : Hall 3A

Chief Instructor: Dr.Lakshmi K S

The pupils offer crucial neuro-ophthalmic insights. Their size, shape, and reactivity reflect the integrity of afferent visual and efferent autonomic pathways. Abnormalities like afferent pupillary defects (e.g., Marcus Gunn) or anisocoria (e.g., Horner's, Adie's) localize lesions in the optic nerve, brainstem, or autonomic nervous system, aiding diagnosis of various neurological conditions affecting vision. It highlights how the pupils, as direct windows into the autonomic nervous system and afferent visual pathways, serve as critical diagnostic tools, often revealing underlying neurological or systemic conditions that might otherwise be missed. Meticulous pupillary examination is fundamental to neuro-ophthalmology. For ophthalmologists and ophthalmologists in the making, pupil examination is vital. These skills enable early diagnosis of serious neurological conditions affecting vision, guiding appropriate referrals and improving patient outcomes.

IC11 - Maladies of Myopia- Challenges of diagnosing and managing

Date : 14-11-2025

Time : 11:00-12:00

Hall : Hall 3A

Chief Instructor: Dr.Shailaja Bhat Shenoy

Target audience: General ophthalmologists and retina specialists

Myopic eyes, especially those with pathological myopia, are at increased risk of vision-threatening retinal diseases. In the post-pandemic era, when behavioural changes have led to the myopia epidemic, complications of myopia are sure to follow. In a busy OPD, it can be challenging to identify these conditions, especially in the early stages when the changes are subtle.

In this instruction course, we will be sharing our experience in managing retinal diseases in myopic eyes. Starting from the optic disc evaluation to treating myopic tractional maculopathies and macular buckles. We will discuss the diagnosis and management of myopic CNVM, surgery for myopic macular hole and the retinal detachment.

Chief Instructor: Dr.prathibha hande

Post-operative endophthalmitis is a sight-threatening emergency that demands timely recognition and appropriate management. This instruction course brings together retina experts from reputed eye institutes to equip general ophthalmologists, cataract surgeons, and ophthalmic staff with practical tools to confidently handle post-surgical intraocular inflammation. Key discussions will include differentiating infective from sterile inflammation, identifying critical signs that warrant early referral to retina specialists, and the role of multimodal imaging in guiding diagnosis and treatment. The course will also cover the relevance of microbiological support in identifying causative organisms and tailoring therapy, evidence-based intravitreal antibiotic use, and decision-making for vitrectomy.

The Art of Caution in Oculoplasty

Date : 14-11-2025

Time : 10:00-11:00

Hall : Hall 4A

Chief Instructor: Dr.Shaifali Chahar

In oculoplastic surgery, precision is paramount—not just in technique, but in judgment. This interactive session brings to light the often-overlooked nuances of surgical decision-making in oculoplasty. From misdiagnosed lesions to overzealous excisions, we present real-world examples, discuss what went wrong, and emphasize how to avoid such pitfalls.

Through case-based discussions and expert insights we will tackle both errors to avoid and difficult surgical choices that demand clarity. Whether you're navigating revision surgery or standing at the edge of a complex primary procedure, this course will help refine your instincts, sharpen surgical judgment, and teach you when to step in—and when to step back.

Designed for both novice surgeons and experienced specialists, this course aims to spark a dialogue through different scenarios to sharpen surgical judgment, promote thoughtful restraint, and foster a deeper understanding of when less is truly more in oculoplasty.

Test your clinical acumen and strategic recall in the Grand Quiz at KOSCON 25—a fast-paced contest that blends rigor with revelry. Across brisk rounds—image spotters, therapeutic triage, surgical judgment calls, and evidence checkpoints—participants will parse nuanced vignettes, decode subtle signs, and marshal guidelines under time pressure. The format rewards accuracy, clarity of reasoning, and teamwork, while offering the audience a lively masterclass in practical ophthalmology. Expect cross-subspecialty questions, contemporary controversies, and a few delightful curveballs. Come to compete, stay to learn, and leave with sharper reflexes, richer pearls, and the satisfaction of matching wits with peers who love the craft as much as you do.

IC25 - Ocular Trauma – Assessment and Management

Date : 15-11-2025

Time : 16:00-17:00

Hall : Hall 2

Chief Instructor: Dr.Poornachandra B

Ocular trauma encompasses a broad spectrum of injuries, ranging from minor, non-vision-threatening conditions to severe, sight-threatening damage with potentially irreversible consequences. These injuries can involve any ocular structure—from the eyelids and adnexa to the globe and optic nerve. A systematic and timely approach at presentation is essential for accurate diagnosis, effective management, prognostication, and medico-legal documentation.

This course will address commonly encountered ocular injuries, including chemical burns, corneal tears, traumatic hyphema, traumatic glaucoma, and retinal and orbital trauma. The objective is to equip general ophthalmologists with the knowledge and confidence to assess, manage, and counsel patients with ocular trauma, thereby improving clinical outcomes and reducing complications.

IC5 - Multimodal surgical approach s in severe ocular surface disease

Date : 15-11-2025

Time : 14:00-15:00

Hall : Hall 3B

Chief Instructor: Dr.Rashmi Kudari

The ocular surface plays a critical role in maintaining the health and function of the eye, serving as a protective barrier and ensuring optical clarity. Advanced ocular surface disorder often requires more than medical management and necessitates surgical intervention to restore function and comfort. The aim is not only to restore ocular surface anatomy but also to improve visual function and patient's quality of life.

management of Advanced Keratoconus

Date : 15-11-2025

Time : 10:00-11:00

Chief Instructor: Dr.Satya Murthy K V

We know in advanced keratoconus C3R can not be done to stabilize the cornea. At the same time visual improvement is possible only with scleral contact lens. Final solution is possible only with Deep Anterior Lamellar Keratoplasty for both visual restoration and stabilization of cornea. This course deals with various surgical options to achieve the above and postpone Keratoplasty . These surgical options enable the patient to see better with contact lens or glasses.

Educators, innovators, and policymakers gather to reimagine learning for a rapidly changing world. This session explores emerging pedagogies, AI-enhanced classrooms, and equitable practices that amplify student voice and agency. Through case studies, interactive dialogues, and practical toolkits, we will examine how to cultivate critical thinking, creativity, and wellbeing at scale. Join us to exchange evidence-based strategies, confront urgent challenges, and co-design actionable roadmaps that translate vision into measurable impact across diverse learning communities.

IC28 - Stepwise approach to solving jigsaw puzzle of strabismus

Date : 16-11-2025

Time : 10:30-11:30

Hall : Hall 3A

Chief Instructor: Dr.Sowmya R

This IC will detail a stepwise approach to a child or an adult presenting to the clinics with squinting or diplopia. Strabismus is like a puzzle best solved by stepwise approach, every step is a step forward in reaching diagnosing and managing it effectively.

The session would be case based approach in solving the common cases in strabismus and few uncommon ones too. This will engage the ophthalmologists and also invoke interest in solving strabismus cases

IC29 - IOP Under the Knife: Evolving Surgical Frontiers in Glaucoma Care

Date : 16-11-2025

Time : 11:30-12:30

Hall : Hall 3A

Chief Instructor: Dr.Priyanka Gumaste

This high-impact instruction course explores the modern surgical landscape of intraocular pressure (IOP) control in glaucoma, with a strong emphasis on technique, decision-making, and practical pearls. As glaucoma surgeons shift toward personalized care, understanding how to balance minimally invasive glaucoma surgery (MIGS), traditional filtering procedures, and rescue strategies become essential. Through case-based learning, live surgical insights, and real-world complication management, this course offers attendees a comprehensive surgical roadmap for managing glaucoma across all levels of severity.

IC13 - Showbiz ophthalmology: Eye docs in public eye- A reality check.

Date : 16-11-2025

Time : 10:30-11:30

Hall : Hall 3B

Chief Instructor: Dr.Krishna Prasad R

Public Trust and undeterred faith form the cornerstone of successful medical practice. Recent studies in mind body medicine suggests a strong correlation between unconditional belief in treating doctors and healing rates. However gradual erosion of faith in medical professionals and viewing medical treatment as a commodity by patient has posed a serious threat to patient doctor relationship with far reaching consequences. This Instruction Course focuses on the changing dynamics of public perception of eye care and it's effects. Our famous movies reinforce the notorious myths about ophthalmic treatment perpetrating misconceptions. Furthermore the internet has become a source of vague, non-curated and unscientific information about eye ailments and it's treatment. This poses a great danger to eye health. Digital marketing can correct many of these maladies. We, professionals should strive to provide clear unambiguous information to improve public faith in our endeavours.

Enhancing Functional and Cosmetic Outcomes in Ophthalmic Practice.

Date : 16-11-2025

Time : 11:30-12:30

Hall : Hall 3B

Chief Instructor: Dr.Roopa Hiremath

This instructional course offers a comprehensive overview of ocular aesthetics, focusing on enhancing both cosmetic and functional outcomes in ophthalmic practice. Participants will gain insights into the evaluation and management of periorbital wrinkles and baggy eyelids through medical and surgical techniques. The course also covers the design and fitting of customized ocular prostheses for patients with empty sockets, aiming to restore natural appearance and mobility. Additionally, it introduces the art and science of corneal tattooing as a solution for unsightly corneal opacities, photophobia, and disfigurement. Through a blend of clinical knowledge, case-based learning, and procedural demonstrations, this course empowers ophthalmologists to incorporate aesthetic solutions into daily practice, improving patient satisfaction and holistic care. Designed for practicing ophthalmologists and trainees, it bridges the gap between reconstructive and cosmetic eye care.

IC26 - "Staying on Axis": The Art & Science of Astigmatism Correction during Cataract surgery

Date : 16-11-2025

Time : 11:30-12:30

Hall : Hall 3C

Chief Instructor: Dr.Tulasi R Meda

Astigmatism correction is crucial for achieving optimal uncorrected visual acuity after cataract surgery. Even low levels, if unaddressed, can significantly impact patient satisfaction and postoperative spectacle independence.

This IC covers the 4 pillars that provide a comprehensive foundation for mastering astigmatism correction during cataract surgery, from diagnostics and planning to execution and enhancement:

Preoperative Assessment – understanding corneal astigmatism through precise diagnostics and imaging

Surgical Planning – selecting the optimal correction strategy using toric calculators and SIA estimation

Intraoperative Execution – Applying surgical techniques like toric IOL alignment and corneal arcuate incisions with precision

Postoperative Management – Assessing outcomes, addressing residual astigmatism and its management.
